In a unique word and song presentation, Raffi will share his philosophy of "Child Honoring," a children-first paradigm for humane and sustainable communities - a compassionate revolution in values. Drawing on the just-published anthology Child Honoring: How to Turn This World Around and his new CD Resisto Dancing: Songs of Compassionate Revolution, Raffi presents an exciting and hope-filled vision and an invitation to, as Nelson Mandela has said, "turn this world around - for the children."

RAFFI CAVOUKIAN is the founder of Child Honouring, a children-first paradigm for global restoration. He is a renaissance man known to millions simply as Raffi: a renowned Canadian troubadour, record producer, systems thinker, author, entrepreneur and ecology advocate, once called "the most popular children's entertainer in the western world" (Washington Post). President of Troubadour Music, among the most successful independent record labels, Raffi was a pioneer in music for children and families: his CDs, tapes, videos, and DVDs have sold over 14 million copies in Canada and the US, and his books, more than 3 million copies.
